The International Topical Meeting on High Temperature Reactor Technology is the sole international conference focusing on high-temperature gas-cooled reactors and process heat application technology. Inaugurated in 2002 by the European High Temperature Reactor Technology Network (HTR-TN) at Petten, The Netherlands, successive meetings were held in China (Beijing, 2004), South Africa (Johannesburg, 2006), USA (Washington DC, 2008), Czech Republic (Prague, 2010), Japan (Tokyo, 2012), China (Weihai, 2014), USA (Las Vegas, 2016), and Poland (Warsaw, 2018). HTR conferences provides a comprehensive networking and exchange forum for professionals in R&D and in industry as well as for decision makers from governments, utilities, end-user industries, and vendors.

In 2021, the HTR conference will be held in Indonesia in collaboration with Indonesian Nuclear Society (HIMNI), National Nuclear Energy Agency of Indonesia (BATAN) and Gadjah Mada University (UGM). Hosting HTR 2021 in Indonesia forms an integral part of a continued effort to promote HTR technology as an option for nuclear power deployment in the country. In the last few years, Indonesia through its National Nuclear Energy Agency (BATAN) has been working on building capacity on HTR technology, and in parallel the regulatory and licensing aspects are developed by the regulatory body for future HTR deployment. The presence of HTR international community provides an opportunity to leverage interest, develop wider communication, and strengthen cooperation among research institutions, universities, worldwide technology provider, national industry, regulatory bodies, and non-governmental parties.

Over 200 professionals from around the world are expected to attend HTR 2021, which will feature plenary, side events, bilateral, and exhibition as well as youth events - in cooperation with the Indonesian Nuclear Youth Communities (KOMMUN).

Being present at HTR 2021 offers a unique opportunity for company, professional organization, university, and business venture to showcase their products and services and to promote engagements with diverse audiences from around the world!
